Jonas Long's Sons' Fourth Anniversary. Today is Anniversary day at Jonas Long's Sons, and the fourth milestone of this successful and enterprising firm in Scranton will have been passed. To wish them many more years of success is, we know, the wish of every true Scrantonian, for it is certainly something to be proud of, to have a store in our midst like the big store of Jonas Long's Sons. The store itself is not only an ornament that adds beauty to the architectural development of the city but the life within the store, its business like conduct, its advancement in modern methods and its help to the people are the principal features to interest us. Here are broad aisles, high ceilings, excellent ventilation on every floor and every modern convenience to make shopping a pleasure and the more than fifty departments that cater to your individual wants are all so bright, so complete and so thoroughly managed that there is not now a need to go out of Scranton for anything. And while these things seem easy to enjoy now, let us not forget that they justify praise on the part of this enterprising firm and the new era in retailing which they established here is appreciated, yes, largely appreciated for there is not a more popular store in Northern Pennsylvania than "The Big Store" and with the passing years, with such masterful merchants at its head it will still continue to progress for it is a map of busy life that covers the space where the old Wyoming hotel once stood and the readers of its daily store news have profited much by the grand transformation that has taken place. And today, Anniversary day, you will have another chance to reap a harvest of opportunities, the store story today tells it all. Read it through, such a gathering of excellent Anniversary items should not be missed by any one.

CONCERT OF MME. NEVADA. HEARD BY AN ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE IN LYCEUM. All of the Numbers She Sang Warmly Received—With Her Are a Wonderful Group of Artists—Chief Among Them Is Pablo Casals, a Spanish Violinist and Daniel Maquarre, a Flutist—Heathcote Gregory the Bass and Leon Moreau Pianist—The Programme. Enthusiasm of a very fervid kind marked the woefully small audience which last night at the Lyceum heard Mme. Nevada, the American woman, whose voice during the last fifteen years has made her one of the most noted of the world's song-birds. With her are a group of artists who have ever appeared in concert in this city. Chief among them is Pablo Casals, a violinist and Daniel Maquarre, a flutist, Leon Moreau, pianist, and Heathcote Gregory are the other members of the party. Mme. Nevada's first number was "Chanson du Mysol" from the "Pearl of Brazil" by Felicien David in which Mme. Nevada sang for a year continuously in Paris. It gave the audience an opportunity to marvel at her wonderful pianissimo and marvelous technique. No singer heard in Scranton has a voice more absolutely at the command of the singer than Mme. Nevada. Her form, in her pianissimo and apper notes, when her voice is of surpassing sweetness and true as the steel to the magnet. In the deeper passages there was less music and feeling and less of that indefinable quality which for want of a better expression is so often described as sweetness of touch, but always there was that superb finish which spoke eloquently of the weary hours of patient training which brought her voice to that degree of flexibility and vibrance. IT ESTABLISHED HER. This first number not less than the graciousness and winning personality of the artist established her at once as a favorite with her audience and when she followed with her famed "Bell Song" from "Lakme," there was nothing profanity about the applause that followed. It was a sincere tribute of appreciation and admiration for the singer. The "Bell Song" was the most ambitious number she had on last night's programme. It is a number which did not establish her fame in Paris when she sang it for four months in "Lakme." Leo Dethle's opera, which has never been heard in this country. To the persistent encore she responded with Ryan's "How He Loves Me Best" which she sang in English. It is a simple little ballad and was rendered with a simplicity and feeling that was charming. On her second appearance Mme. Nevada sang in French "Tschalkowsky's "Trousseau" in which the sorcery oppressed Russian peasant wails forth his sorrows. It was admirably interpreted. "Vogel im Walde," by Taubert, was her second number and for an encore she gave "You and I," by Liza Lehmann, with the sincerity of expression and execution that made each of her numbers a joy. On her last appearance she sang "The Shadow Dance" from "Dinorah," by Meyerbeer. To this the audience enthusiastically demanded an encore and the singer graciously consented and seating herself at the piano and playing her own accompaniment, sang the "Mocking Bird" as few in that audience had ever heard it sung before, her clear flute like upper tones being superbly suited to the selection.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION. Permanent Organization Effected by Members of the Thirteenth Regiment Last Night. At a meeting of the field and staff officers and representatives from each of the companies of the Thirteenth regiment, held last night in the new armory, the athletic association, which has been talked of for so long, was organized. Present at the meeting in addition to the field and staff officers and Sergeant Kiple, of the non-commissioned staff, were the following company representatives: Company A, Sergeant Hall; Company C, Corporal Gunster; Company D, Corporal Coffin; Company F, Sergeant Yost; Company H, Sergeant Constantine; Company K, Private VanBuren. The following officers were elected: President, First Lieutenant David J. Davis, adjutant of the Third battalion; vice-president, Fred VanBuren; secretary, Sergeant Yost; Company E, treasurer, Sergeant Adams, of Company D. The president will appoint committees immediately to take up the work of organizing an indoor base ball league, and map out a schedule. Nearly all of the companies have indoor base ball teams organized, and an interesting season is looked forward to. Another committee will have charge of the arrangements for a field night, when athletic contests of various kinds will be held. Another meeting of the association will be held next Monday night in the rooms of the Third battalion.

THE VIOLINCELLIST. Pablo Casals, the violinist, is a Spaniard 25 years of age, who is in a sense a protegee of Mme Nevada, and has been with her party since he finished in the Conservatory of Madrid. He is rightfully rated as one of the greatest "cello" players of his day and with life just opening before him his future no one may forecast. It was through the good offices of the queen of Spain that he was enabled to pursue his studies at the Conservatory of Madrid, her attention having been attracted to him by the unmistakable evidence of genius he displayed. He opened his part of the programme with Faure's "Elegie" which told the audience of his mastery of the magnificent instrument. His whole soul seemed to pour forth into the music as the strings answered his every touch with a responsiveness seemingly human. Seldom is found combined in one person the ability to touch the strings with such faultless certainty and interpret with the soul of a poet. It is this rare combination of qualities that marks Signor Casals for greatness. His second number was Saint Saens' "Allegro Apassionato," and for an encore he gave "Chanson Napolitaine." His second appearance was anxiously awaited and after he had played "Romanza Campagnola," a great wave of applause swept over the house. His next number was "Taratente Popper," and to which he was compelled to respond. He played Saint Saens' "Swan Song." The audience called him back five or six times but he refused to again invoke his violinello.

POSSIBILITIES OR FLUTE. Daniel Maquarre, the flutist, is a Parisian of 21 years of age and only recently from the Conservatory of Music there, Mme. Nevada was not very wildly extravagant when she described him as the greatest flutist in the world. His first number, Saint Saens' "Air de Ballet" gave the audience a hint of the possibilities of the humble flute, and as the liquid notes of a "Chopin" floated out in the air the audience was entranced. There was an enthusiastic demand for more and he responded with Dobbly's "Chanson d'Amour." Later he accompanied Mme. Nevada in the "Chanson du Thyssol" number. Leon Moreau had an unsympathetic piano to deal with but notwithstanding this handicap demonstrated himself a player of ability and feeling. His numbers were the "Chopin Nocturne No. 18," Schuman Nocturne No. 2, the Liszt Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 12 and two compositions of his own. Heathcote Gregory of New York is the bass of the party. He has a fine voice which was heard to good advantage in "Le Cor," by Flegler, where he had opportunity to use the low notes which are the best in his repertoire. For an encore he sang "When Love is Done." On his second appearance he sang "Im Walde" and "Mysol" when Young, Lehmann, and "Mysol" when Young, Lehmann. He was compelled to return by the audience and sang "Hawley's "The Sweetest Flower That Blooms."

GENERAL GOBIN COMING. Will Witness One of the Performances of "Kardia Komas." The welcome news was received by a member of the committee who has charge of the Spanish War Veterans' Dinner at the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday night, that General Gobin will attend without fail. The intelligence was furnished by Colonel C. R. Dougherty, of Wilkes-Barre, who had the news direct from General Gobin, Colonel Dougherty also informed the committee that he would attend with members of his staff and the Ninth regiment. All the performers are urgently requested to be at the armory this evening for a general rehearsal. The junior classes will assemble at 6 o'clock, and the senior classes at 7 o'clock. It was at first decided to hold the final rehearsal in Turney's hall, but at a late hour last evening the old armory was again turned over to the Spanish War Veterans for the remainder of the week. This is on the authority of Colonel Coursen. A final grand dress rehearsal will take place at the Lyceum, Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when all who take part must be present.

GREAT OVATION FOR MITCHELL. TENDERED BY UNITED MINE WORKERS OF WEST SIDE. Over a Thousand Men and Boys Waited in St. David's Hall Until Nearly Midnight to Greet Their National President—He Favours an Eight Hour Day and Says Miners Will Get It and Recognition, Too. Other Addresses by National Officers and Visiting Delegates. The United Mine Workers of West Scranton tendered President John Mitchell and other national officers and visiting delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention a reception in St. David's hall last night, which lasted until long after midnight. A started programme of speeches, vocal and instrumental numbers was enjoyed by fully a thousand persons who crowded into the hall and never seemed to tire of the event. Flattering ovations were accorded President Mitchell, President T. D. Nichols, Patrick Quinn, president of the Pittsburgh district; James A. Lavery, of New York; William Haskins, of Columbus, Ohio; Organizer Hugh Franey, of Scranton; John P. Beese, state president of the Iowa and Michigan districts; William B. Ryan, secretary of the Illinois district; National Treasurer W. B. Wilson, of Indianapolis and National Vice-President T. L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America and State Secretary Lee, of New Orleans. President Mitchell did not arrive until after 11 o'clock, owing to his attendance at a similar meeting in Wilkes-Barre, and in his speech offered an apology for being so late in arriving. He said his effort in Wilkes-Barre had incapacitated him for a lengthy speech. A PLEASURE TO MEET THEM. To him, he said, it is an extreme pleasure to meet the people who so nobly fought the battle of 1900. The transformation in the labor movement in the Lackawanna valley since the famous strike was inaugurated, he said, has been wonderful. The most notable part of his speech was his advocacy for an eight-hour day among the mine workers. "I unhesitatingly favor the eight-hour day as the paramount question next spring," he said, "and I do favor an eight-hour day in preference to anything else. I favor the reduction of the hours of labor to eight hours a day, as wages can never remain permanently high if hours are long. "What has been true of other trades unions will also be true of the mine workers. If you reduce the hours of work, wages will go up. Why should the mine workers work longer a day? I don't know, except it is because the companies compel them to. It is not only in the interest of mine workers to reduce the hours of labor, but in the interest of all trades unions. "I am not here to denigrate the men who employ you, as there is not one injustice you have suffered but that you were not responsible for yourself by not being organized. You have yourselves to blame for the conditions which existed prior to the strike. But the anthracite mine workers will receive what they expect, they will get the eight-hour day, recognition, check-weighment, higher wages and better conditions if they are true to themselves and the cause they represent. "Mr. Mitchell made an earnest appeal for the education of the breaker boys, and said the greatest honor ever bestowed on him was when the Scranton breaker boys honored him as their friend. He pleaded for better wages for the fathers of the boys, in order that they might be permitted to go to school instead of the breaker and mines. W. J. THOMAS PRESIDED. The meeting was presided over by William J. Thomas, and addresses were made by all of the visitors above mentioned. The vocal numbers were contributed by Michael Donnegan, David Jenkins, David Steinhilber and Thomas Abrams. Master Beulah Phillips rested, and
